Judge McNutt appointed Floyd B. Tower as foreman of the jury, and Mr. Tower in turn named Mrs. Mayda E. Warner, of Atherton, as secretary.

Judge McNutt informed the press that he had no particular program in mind for the jury, but that he hoped to have the grand jury inquiries conducted at the least possible expense to the county.

Local Veteran Firemen Observe Mother's Day

The Veteran Firemen of Daly City held their meeting on Friday evening, May 4, at their hall, 188 Santa Barbara avenue, with a large number of the Veterans present.

Following the disposal of the regular business, President H. W. A. Rickmann called upon Chaplain H. H. Smith for an address upon the subject of "Mothers," this meeting being held in honor of Mother's Day.

Each Veteran was presented a carnation, white carnations for the mothers of the Veteran Firemen who are still alive, and red carnations for those whose mothers have passed on.

The committee on the Veteran Firemen's picnic reported the picnic would be held on Sunday, May 20, at Pioneer Blackberry Farm, Monte Vista. This will be a basket picnic. The Veteran Firemen will furnish coffee. They will leave from the top of the hill at 9:30, Sunday morning, May 20. Look for signs where you should turn off the highway at old Mountain View. Everybody is invited, so don't forget to be there. A good time is assured.

After the meeting a buffet lunch was served by Comrade Chef John Hesselein, which was greatly enjoyed by the Firemen.

Dr. Vireno, who is a graduate of Jefferson Union high school, received his A. B. degree at University of California. He is a member of Xi Psi Phi, dental fraternity, was art editor of the school annual, "Chips," 1933-34, class president 1934, and student body treasurer, 1934.

CORONER McGOVERN PLANS TO CLOSE PEDRO DEATH TRIAL

Coroner J. C. McGovern was quoted last Tuesday as saying that he will request San Francisco authorities to close a dangerous trail at the brink of a high cliff at Pedro Point, from which numerous persons have fallen to their deaths, following an inquest in Daly City into the death of Peter Rassmussen, 50, San Francisco, on April 29.

Rassmussen was killed in a 100-foot fall over the cliff. The trail is on the property of the city of San Francisco, said McGovern. A jury found that death was accidental. The inquest was conducted at the W. C. Lasswell chapel.

Few Injured in Accidents

Less than half a dozen persons were injured, none seriously, in San Mateo county traffic accidents last Saturday and Sunday, according to a check of police and hospital reports.

AMERICAN LEGION TO AID COMRADES

Daly City Post No. 410 American Legoin, will observe the Annual Post Comanders' Night, with Junior Post Commander O. H. Tallmadge presiding, at the next regular meeting, Wednesday, May 23.

Don't forget the next regular dance in Happy-Go-Lucky Hall, 7343 Mission street, Saturday, May 26.

Continuation of the extensive work for the welfare of disabled World war veterans and their families, carried out by the American Legion and the auxiliary, will be made possible by means of the memorial poppies which will be distributed throughout the nation on Saturday, May 26. Contributions for the poppies will form the principal source of support for the Legion and Auxiliary's welfare work during the coming twelve months.

Even before the curtailment of governmental benefits for the disabled, a vast amount of relief and rehabilitation work was left for the Legion and Auxiliar yto do. Federal economy measures last year increased this greatly. Because of the inflexibility of laws and the necessary technicalities guarding governmental expenditures, the government was never able to reach all the needy disabled, and now the number left without government aid is larger than ever before.

Here in Daly City our unit of the American Legion Auxiliary has continuous call for relief and rehabilitation. Disabled veterans are under a severe handicap when they cannot compete with able-bodied men for employment, even in good times, and under present conditions their situation is frequently desperate. The American Legion and Auxiliary always have been their friends in need and with the help of those who wear the poppy on Saturday, May 26, we will continue to be during the coming year. L. M. H.

SPORTING ATMOSPHERE TO RULE

By J. W. MARCHBANK

With a beginning made in high class racing in California, closer relationships are forming with other countries. When racing men pass our way they invariably are impressed with the possibilities of the pastime. Enthusiasm of the visitors reaches its height on a jaunt to Heather Farm, my blood horse nursery on the other side of the bay.

Patrick O'Shea, of Brisbane, Queensland, was at the races at Tanforan last week end and viewed the proceedings with a critical eye, as he has owned good horses himself in his own country. He was especially interested in the running of an event at two miles. As is well known, Australia is famous the world over for its route travelers. A personal angle came in the fact Mr O'Shea owns a well bred mare that made a "down under" record for two miles.

"My greatest thrill on my highly enjoyable visit," said Mr. O'Shea, "was in seeing the magnificent stallion King Heather, Sunday morning, and in witnessing the game triumph of his son, Sunny Bank, Sunday afternoon."

Sporting instinct led the Australian to go into the racing game and through the years he has been at Epsom Downs, on Derby Day; at Flemington, when the Melbourne Cup is run; and at a number of meetings in Ireland when on one of his round the world tours. He has been successful in his racing ventures, just as he has been in his profession. By a coincidence, Sunday, May 6th, the day he was at Heather Farm and at Tanforan, was the forty-fourth anniversary of his admission to the practice of his profession, the law.

On all sides progress is reported in the movement I initiated some time ago for the reduction of the commission on pari mutuel pools in California from twelve per cent to nine per cent. To put the pastime on a sportsman-like basis the change is imperative.

ROYCE SPORTS WIN FROM PALO ALTO

The Royce Sports defeated the Palo Alto town team Sunday at Palo Alto's home diamond by a score of 1 to 0.

Davies, former Jefferson high pitcher, handled himself like a veteran on the mound and allowed the opposition six measly hits. Duke Dold replaced Cameron as catcher and gave a good account of himself. The outfielders, Maloney and Pieratti, played bang-up ball, and Maloney's sensational shoe string catch in the ninth inning saved the game.

Tony Arcuri, third baseman, handled five chances without an error, and his hard hit single scored the only run of the game. Young Dave Johnson, stortstop, also showed up well and garnered two hits for himself.

Manager Ed. Cavagnero was injured by an automobile Tuesday night and will not be with the team for a few months.

TANFORAN OFFERS BEST PERFORMERS

Following two of the most successful week ends in the history of Tanforan, the track will offer tomorrow (Saturday) the Stanford Handicap over a distance of a mile and a furlong for three-year-olds and upward. The stake will be $1,000 added, according to an announcement today from J. W. Marchbank, director general of the track.

There will be no racing this Sunday.

Last Sunday the track staged American Legion Day, with the American Legion Handicap as the feature event. The Legion presented a cup to the winning horse. Proceeds of the day were turned over to San Mateo county and San Francisco Legion posts to help defray expenses of the Legion convention to be held in San Francisco next August. Thousands of veterans and their friends attended the meeting last Sunday.

During this meeting Mr. Marchbank held several Sunday meetings for the benefit of welfare endeavors. The first such program was for the benefit of San Mateo county welfare agencies, which netted a neat sum to be divided among these agencies. Another was Shrine Derby Day, when the Masonic organization realized an impressive amount for its welfare agencies. The latest was the Legion program.

Again tomorrow (Saturday) Tanforan's best performers will go to the post in the Stanford Handicap, named for the famous Peninsula university founder. Among the nominations thus far are horses that have offered brilliant performances in past stake races at the track. The distance is said to be right for many of these.

It is expected that thousands of fans again will throng the track for the feature event and attractive program to be presented tomorrow.

THEATRE PARTY ENJOYED BY COMPANY FIVE MEMBERS

The members of Company No. 5, Daly City Volunteer Fire Department, were hosts to their wives at a dinner and theatre party last Saturday night. The dinner party was held on the pilot deck of Bernstein's Fish Grotto, on Powell street. After a fine dinner the group attended the Curran, and saw Will Rogers in "Ah! Wilderness."

Those in the party were Mr. and Mrs. John Fields, Mr. and Mrs. John Cosbie, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Haller, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stacey, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reinhart, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Brady, Mr. and Mrs. George Felsch, and Mr. and Mrs. John Albonsky.

Files Suit Against Mrs. Gavin

Mrs. Constance May Gavin, winner of the James L. Flood will fight, has been granted a week's delay in the suit filed against her by George K. Ford, San Francisco attorney, who seeks a share of the money she won from the Flood estate.

GOOD DAYS AHEAD FOR SILVER MEN

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work.

Developing the opportunity for doing something for the silver mining industry, events are moving fast under the well directed efforts of statesmen of broad vision. As I said in this column last week, the wheels are in motion and before long relief may be expected for silver similar to that given to gold. I also noted the suggested base of seventy per cent gold and thirty per cent silver for the country's monetary structure.

As has been pointed out by experts, the amount of silver to be acquired by the Government to fix a seventy to thirty relation depends on the value placed on silver. At present the net value to the miner is 64½ cents an ounce, as the Government retains one-half of the $1.29 set under the Roosevelt plan, making the charge as seignorage.

It is reported on reliable authority that the House of Representatives is sympathetic to any legislation favorable to silver originating in the Senate. Western Senators are taking the lead in the drive for silver.

As President Roosevelt is in a receptive mood an early move along the 70-30 front is anticipated in well-informed circles. Silver stocks of the Government are now $840,000,000, and on the proposed basis a reserve of $3,323,000,000 would be required to establish the 70-30 ratio.

* * *

Quite a number of areas will be opened up with renewed vigor when a change is made in regard to silver with an international angle developing. In a remarkably comprehensive mining edition of the Vancouver Sun, recently issued, I have been reading of the new interest in old fields up north—the interest due entirely to the probable rehabilitation of silver to a reasonable figure.

A third of a century ago the Troute Lake area, for example, was the scene of a quiet boom, during which many promising properties were found and partially developed and a large quantity of high-grade silver ore shipped. In that period silver was quoted in New York as follows:

1900, 61.33 cents per ounce.
1901, 58.95 cents per ounce.
1902, 52.16 cents per ounce.
1903, 53.37 cents per ounce.

Attention has recently been called to the district by a deal under which Vancouver interests have secured the Silver Cup and Nettie L mines, formerly controlled by Englishmen. The 1897 report of the Minister of Mines devoted eight pages to the district, describing the ore as essentially argentiferous galena, mixed with grey copper, and in some cases, as at the Silver Cup, carrying gold values.

As to the future the following opinion is expressed:

"There is not the slightest question but that this area, producing ores in general character similar to those of the Slocan district, which lies to the south and west, would spring into activity in the event of higher prices for silver."

Even more to the point of putting hosts to work in the most alluring work in the world, I read:

"Certainly, no district offers such inducements for proftable silver-lead operations, both large and small. Hundreds, yes, thousands, could find profitable employment if and when higher prices for the metals are secured."

The area under discussion, rightfully denominated an "empire," lies between the Columbia River and Arrow Lakes on the west and the Alberta line on the east.

R. J. Merrill, mining man of the Valdez section, interviewed recently by the Valdez Miner, stated gold mining is again at the front and is commanding the attention of capital along the Pacific Coast. He predicts Alaska, as I have been saying for some time, will hit her stride this year.

* * *

In the Cordova Times, through the medium of The Alaska Weekly, I read mining camps are echoing with new activities under the impetus of the higher price of gold. I will add this bit—and the price is going higher, propably to $41.34.

Gardener Struck by Car While on His Way Home

Thomas Comley, 52, a gardener employed at the Home of Peace cemetery at Lawndale, was struck by an automobile while crossing the road opposite the cemetery last Sunday night. Comley, who resides at Ocean View, was treated at Villa sanitarium, Colma, for lacerations, bruises and shock. The accident was held unavoidable.

MERK RESIGNS AS RELIEF DIRECTOR

Sam D. Merk, director of unemployment relief and C. W. A. activities of San Mateo county for the past year, tendered his resignation to the board of supervisors, meeting in Redwood City last Monday. Mr. Merk asked that he be relieved of his duties by May 10.

The board delayed action on the resignation for one week, and asked the welfare chief to reconsider his resignation. This he declined to do, saying: "I will not reconsider under any circumstances."

Mr. Merk began his work for the county when he became chairman of the bond issue committee two years ago. Following the resignation of Captain Edward Macauley as county relief head and C. W. A. administrator, Mr. Merk was named to succed him.

The supervisors were informed by County Controller Edward M. Stack that they will have to prepare a county-wide tax to meet delinquencies on improvement bonds in seven districts of the county where taxpayers have defaulted.

The trial of the Bayshore Sanitary District's attempt to close the San Francisco dump there has been delayed two weeks, the board was informed.

The board approved certain additions to the Lomita Park fire district, leaving out, after strong protest, the Willows and Marine Vista Park sections.

LEGION TO STAGE RELIEF PROGRAM

Last Friday, May 4, the San Mateo County Council, of which R. A. Rapsey is chairman, held their monthly meeting at Daly City Legion Hall, and it was decided that between May 28 and June 25, the Council will stage a county-wide disaster relief program. A suitable award will be made to the post showing the best response.

The Council voted an appropriation to further the song "Hail, To You Legion Men," composed by Comrade Harding, of San Mateo. Efforts are being made by Chairman S. Ward to have the state adopt it as the officia! song.

Following a talk by R. Stilwell of the employment bureau, the Council adopted a resolution, which will be sent to the board of supervisors, that a veteran be placed on the relief board.

Commander Chess reported fine progress on new posts.

The next meeting of the Council will be in South San Francisco, Bernard McCaffery Post, of which C. H. Whitney is commander, on Friday, June 8th.

PARENT-TEACHERS TO ENJOY PROGRAM AT HIGH SCHOOL

The Comercial Department will be in charge of the program for Jefferson Union High School P.-T. A. next Tuesday evening. The high school band, under the leadership of Harry Waters, will play three selections. The chorus will also present several numbers under the direction of Bertha Songer.

Typing students from Miss Robinson's and Miss Edna Smith's classes will participate in a typing contest.

Esther Frankling is presenting an explanatory talk on the Gregg System of Shorthand.

Miss Dorothy Smith will present a demonstration by students of the 11B Stenography Classes.

The Commercial Georgaphy classes will give a dramatization entitled "John Bull's Family."

Brief reports will be given by the two delegates to the recent state convention of the Congress of Parents and Teachers. Mrs. J. Bentley and Mrs. M. Dunn represented the local unit.

San Mateo County Wins Fight for Transit Survey

San Mateo county won an initial victory last Monday in its fight for a Peninsula-San Francisco rapid transit system linking with the San Francisco union station and bay bridge approach projects.

The San Francisco Chamber of Commerce announced employment of Dr. B. M. Rastall, survey expert, to conduct a complete investigation of interurban and approach plans for the San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge, according to a United Press dispatch.

It will cover "proposals for an improved transit system for the Peninsula, a union station linking the bay bridge and Peninsula systems, and the question of where the bridge interurban line should be located," said the dispatch.

LEGION AUXILIARY PLAN POPPY DRIVE

Daly City Unit No. 410 has completed its plans for the sale of the red paper poppies made by the disabled veterans for the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary. More members than ever before will take part in the "Poppy Day" activities through which poppies, to be worn in honor of the World War dead, will be offered throughout Daly City.

All workers distributing poppies for the auxiliary will serve without pay or commission. Every penny contributed for the poppies will go to the relief of needy disabled veterans and their families. Making of the poppies has provided employment for many disabled veterans during the winte rand spring and the funds collected will help finance the relief activies of the American Legion and auxiliary among the disabled veterans and dependents of the dead and disabled in the city during the coming year.

The following proclamation nas been issued by the governor:

"Under the auspices of the American Legion Auxiliary a state-wide poppy drive is to be inaugurated to provide funds for those crippled or disabled by the war. Paper poppies made by disabled veterans under the supervision of the Auxiliary are to be sold to the citizens of this state. Last year millions of these poppies were purchased in the United States, Panama and the Hawaiian Islands.

"Because I know that Californians will not forget those who have died for their good and those who are now battling to rehabilitate themselves under the handicap of wounds, shock, and disease, suffered in the cause of their nation, I proclaim May 25 to 30 'Poppy Week.'

"I ask, on behalf of the American Legion Auxiliary, for whole-hearted support of my fellow citizens."

TO MOTHER

By M. Jensen

One loving soul remains the same today,
Tomorow and 'till time shall be no more.
'Tis God's sweet love in Mother; so I say
Let's honor her this day as heretofore.

'Tis Motherhood, God's richest gift to man
That makes the scheme of life continue on;
Our Country, State and Home, our every plan
Began with Mother, and has altered none.

The music of the Spheres cannot compare
To a Mothers' crooning to her infant child;
For 'tis played upon her heart-strings rare,
Filled with harmony both sweet and mild.

And so we owe to Mother, bless her soul!"
The inspiration of our lives on earth;
Our citizenship, our manhood, every Kind thoughts for her—who is
That's sought by man, of genuine worth.

Again I say, let's honor her today,
Let every one bear tribute to her shrine;
Let hearts pour forth in every way
Kind thoughts for her—who is love divine.

JUNIOR-SENIOR RESERVES MEET

The Junior and Senior Girl Reserves of Daly City will meet with their advisers, Junior Adviser Mrs. Russell Orr, 189 Santa Barbara avenue, Daly City, and Senior Advisers Mrs. Ed. Ray, 183 Flournoy street, Daly City, and Mrs. Helen Overstreet, 26 Bepler street, Daly City, in the American Legion Hall, Friday, May 11, at 3:30. The advisers took a group of girls to the Y. W. C. A. swimming pool last Saturday morning, and they had a wonderful time. The girls are planning a big picnic at San Mateo Park, Saturday, May 19. A special street-car has been donated by the Market Street Railway for transportation. The car will leave from the Daly City Theatre at 10 o'clock sharp. All girls should bring their own lunches.

Organization of a special committee to press the widening of El Camino Real from San Mateo to Redwood City was effected at a meeting held at the San Mateo city hall Thursday evening.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL NOTES OF INTEREST

The mothers of the girls in the High Eight Grades met and decided to make the dresses for graduation. One finds the girls in Sewing Room busily engaged under the direction of Mrs. Hewner. The dresses are to be of white pique, with a sailor collar of colorful material to represent the school colors.

This is the first year that the graduation dresses have been made by the girls, who are happy that they have reached this degree of accomplishment.

A great deal of interest is being displayed in the vicinity of the Woodrow Wilson School. Work has been started on a new building for the Manual Training and Domestic Science Departments. It will be a great addition to our schols and our city.

It was with regret that the displays, exhibited in the schools of the district, were dismantled last week. This year's display was the best one this district has had for Public Schools Week, with every school participating. The various classes and departments showed evidence of having attained excellent results for their efforts. The parents are to be complimented for the interest they showed in visiting the schools in such large numbers during the week.

Wild excitement reigned when the teams of the Girls Baseball League played a game between Woodrow Wilson and Jefferson. It resulted in a 13 to 13 tie. Both teams are looking forward to the time when they can play off the tie.

Children in the Crocker, Jefferson, and Woodrow Wilson Schools anxiously await the final results of the Poster Contest held recently by the P. T. A. The contest took in all of San Mateo county. Those winning in the county had their posters sent to Sacramento to compete with the winners from the rest of the state.

Jefferson District won three prizes in the county and six honorable mentions, which are as follows:

Crocker School—Violet Kling, first prize; honorable mention, Eleanor Urton, Ulrich McKeel and Billy Jocelyn Pierce.

Woodrow Wilson School—Grant Smith, second prize; honorable mention, Barbara Morris and Lucy Loyola.

Jefferson School—Mary Ellen Dunn, third prize; honorable mention, Frank Moos.

In work selected to go to Sacramento as an art exhibit, Billie Van Liewfi of Woodrow Wilson school, won a place.

Mrs. Corral supervises the Art Department in the grammar schools.

PIONEER COLMA MERCHANT CALLED BY GRIM REAPER

Mr. Lagomarsino was born in Italy in 1848, and came to America while very young. He is survived by five children, George, Mae and Josephine Lagomarsino, of Colma, Mrs. Louisa Rossi and Mrs. Estelle Raffeto, and a sister, Rosa Lagomarsino, of Colma, and a brother, August Lagomarsino, of Stockton.

Services took place from the family home on School street last Saturday morning. A requiem high mass was celebrated in Holy Angels church in Colma at 10 o'clock. Entombment was in Holy Cross Mausoleum.

God Made Women to Guide Us, Called Them Mothers

By LILLIAN LANDINI.

"Nature sent woman into the world with this bridal dower of love, for this reason, that they might be what their destination is, Mothers, and love children to whom sacrifices must ever be offered and from none are to be obtained."—Richter.

Mothers with plain clothes and stray tresses denote self sacrifice and there is not a person, young or old, who can deny it. We all are very proud of mothers, no matter where they are or who they are, but really no one but sons and daughters know the value of a mother. If her appearance seems to indicate carelessness and poor taste, it also denotes unselfishness, less thought for herself, more thought for her children. We can all criticize run down heels, old clothes and undressed hair but everyone in the family can't have the things that cost money, so mother goes without.

During the past years of depression, mother felt it most. For where there were sacrifices to be made, mother made them. She has done more than sacrifice herself, she has let the children believe she does not care about pretty clothes, or flowers, or luncheons, or being a club member. She has even sacrificed her monthly magazines, her trip to visit friends, and many other things she longs for when sitting by herself. Does she complain when there seems to be no end of demands upon her? No. Mother would rather let her children think that she does not care for pretty things than to hurt them. And again mother does not expect any return for what she has done.

Mothers everywhere have one prayer: "Please, God, make our children good, and teach them the right from wrong. Keep them well and happy, and may they appreciate all Thine great gifts, which Thou has bestowed upon them."

Mothers, good or otherwise, rich or poor, the world over, want their children to be the very finest.

"God bless all mothers, and may they never want. May their prayer be answered."

Dear boys and girls, do not forget mother. Honor her in some way, the way you know she will enjoy most. Remind her of something she did for you, which she has long forgotten. Make her realize you think of her often. She will shed a few happy tears, or perhaps have many pleasant hours of though tfrom the remembrance of the incident of which you remind her.

May the memories of those mothers who have passed on inspire us to do rightly, and may we keep ever before us a mother's picture of all that is good and holy.

PIONEER LOCAL RESIDENT ANSWERS FINAL SUMMONS

CIGAR MAKERS ADOPT GAS TO DRY TOBACCO PROPERLY

Cigar factories now use gas-fired equipment for the highly important process of drying tobacco to exactly the right degree. One device employed for this purpose is a rotating cylinder, ten feet long, enclosed in an insulated sheet-steel oven in which automatic burners maintain a temperature of 120 degrees. Moist tobacco is put in one and of the cylinder and spiral vanes move it slowly through until it comes out the other end perfectly dried.

MYSTERY AT RABBIT HILL

By R. H. WILKINSON

©. Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

THE mystery at Rabbit Hill lasted but a week.

Yet its brevity served to detract not at all from the atmosphere of glamour and excitement and heavy intrigue which it created.

Mysteries are not common in our town of Medway.

Those of use who abide here the greater part of the time live a mediocre life, a life of routine that scarcely, if ever, deviates from the path of normality.

Hence, mystery, brief though it may be, logical and disappointing though the solution, because of its sheer incongruity in our staid old town, is something to talk about.

Our mystery occurred two months ago.

The Taylor Winslows, who have occupied the big white house on Rabbit Hill for generations back, departed one bright June morning for an extended motor tour of the White mountains and Canada.

Toward dusk of the same day an automobile containing four people swung into the Winslow's drive and stopped just outside the garage door.

The car was a roadster and two of its four occupants, a man and a woman, occupied the rumble seat.

It was a fine summer's night, with a crescent moon hanging above the pines beyond the house, with stars, clear and white, blinking overhead, with the warm air with the smell of growing things.

• • •

The four people in the automobile had driven far and were weary.

The present setting was a far cry from the city home they had quitted several hours before.

It was restful here and cool.

They remained in the car for a quarter-hour or more, conscious of the magic spell of peace and quiet that enfolded them, and thankful for it.

Presently the man in the rumble seat stirred and sat erect.

"Let's go inside, Bob. It's getting cold, and there's a fireplace in there."

At the exact moment he uttered the words the young man was conscious of an unexplainable sensation of weirdness.

For no reason whatever he found himself staring into the darkness beyond the car; he sensed, he thought, a mysterious presence other than that of his companions.

The youth looked at the girl.

Her eyes were open and her face had assumed an attitude of listening.

Those in front were rigid and still.

The crescent moon had disappeared behind the pines.

It was dark and deathly still.

The young man who had spoken uttered a laugh that somehow lacked in mirth, and at the exact moment the sound left his lips something neither soft nor hard yet seemingly malleable crashed against his head.

He reeled, groaned, instinctively lifted up his arm, only to have it beaten down.

• • •

One of the girls screamed, and then the other.

The young man at the wheel swore, and pressed his foot against the starter button.

The roadster leaped ahead, disappeared inside the open door of the garage and stopped. . .

Ten minutes later the village telephone operator had summoned Medway's police chief from his regular evening beat in response to an urgent summons. Chief Tom Carmody clamped the switchboard receivers over his head.

"Hello," came a voice. "Chief Carmody? This is Bob Winslow. I'm up at Taylor's place on Rabbit Hill. Come up right away, will you? Somebody's hurt!"

Chief Carmody, who himself was not immune to a little excitement now and again to relieve the monotony of a law-abiding community, made short work of the two miles to Rabbit Hill.

He listened to Bob Winslow's account of what had happened, examined the wound on Harry Carter's head, made mental note of the frightened expressions on the faces of the two women, and, flashlight and gun in hand, went out to investigate.

• • •

After ten minutes' time Bob Winslow began to wonder what had happened to the chief, and when another ten minutes had passed without word from him, went himself to investigate.

Bob found the chief lying in the drive before the garage, a nasty wound on his head, his sensibilities departed.

Bob became genuinely alarmed and sensed again that weird feeling of a strange and mysterious presence lurking about.

Summoning Harry, they carried Chief Carmody into the house and revived him.

But the officer couldn't throw much light on the subject.

He had been attacked from behind, he said, and must have struck his head against a rock when he fell.

The next day Chief Carmody appointed a special officer to guard the Winslow estate.

But nothing of an unforeseen nature occurred throughout the daylight hours.

Toward dusk Bertha Winslow, Bob's wife, became uneasy, and suggested they all return to Boston.

But both Bob and Harry were for staying on.

They wanted to get at the bottom of the mystery.

By this time all Medway was agog over the strange happenings.

As darkness descended folks began to gather in little groups before the house, as if expecting some weird phenomenon to take place.

• • •

It was close to ten o'clock when one of the spectators, disobeying orders from Chief Carmody, ventured into the yard on a tour of inspection.

Five minutes after he had disappeared the watching populace heard a groan and, rushing to the spot, discovered the curious person crashing through the shrubbery as if pursued by devils.

He had, he avowed, been attacked.

On the day following, a special posse was organized and a thorough search made of the Winslow grounds and buildings.

But not a particle of evidence that might lead to a solution of the mystery was uncovered.

It was all very strange and mysterious, providing Medway natives with enough material for novel conversation to last them for months to come.

On the third night the posse remained on guard at different points about the premises.

And despite their studious vigilance two of their number were struck down by the same mysterious force.

• • •

The townsfolk were becoming alarmed.

Bob Winslow and his friends showed grave concern.

Chief Carmody was puzzled and not a little angered by it all.

There was, he said, absolutely nothing to work on.

In all his 20 years' experience as a police officer he had had nothing of this nature to contend with.

People began reciting tales of ghosts and weird happenings; stories of bats and vampires and lost souls.

All in all they created quite an atmosphere of unrealism, an atmosphere augmented by the actual unexplained assaults on at least five persons by the strange mystery force that came out of the darkness and disappeared again without leaving a single telltale clew.

Another two days passed and another guard was assaulted.

Chief Carmody, in accord with his own wishes and those of Bob Winslow, was on the point of summoning outside aid to solve the mystery, when Taylor and his wife one afternoon drove into the yard and stared about in bewildered fashion at the crowds of people and half-dozen guards posted about the place.

"What the devil," asked Taylor, "is it all about? What's happened? Why, it looks like the place was under martial law!"

"Worse than that," his cousin, Bob, informed him. "Come inside and we'll tell you about it. And incidentally, get ready for a shock."

Taylor and his wife sat down in the kitchen.

The others grouped themselves about, with Chief Carmody and two guards in the background.

• • •

Bob Winslow told the story, and while he talked his expression was grave and deeply concerned.

When the story was ended Taylor stared at him and stared at the faces of those behind, and suddenly burst into a loud guffaw of laughter.

He laughed till the tears rolled down his cheeks, stopping finally from sheer exhaustion.

Bob and the others, sensing that they were the objects of this outburst, grew red and then angry.

"Well, what's so funny about it?" Taylor suddenly sobered.

"I should have told you," he explained. "It struck me funny when you spoke of midnight prowlers and mysterious attacks in the dark. I should have told you about the owls."

"Owls!"

"Owls, yes. There's a pair of owls made their nest in the hollow tree behind the garage. Recently the old lady hatched out four young ones, and has been teaching them to fly. You ought to know that a mother owl becomes vicious to a point of insanity if she thinks anyone is planning to harm her children. Why, the night we left she swooped down on me and knocked me for a row of gooseberry bushes. Their claws are like steel. And at such times they fear nothing, will attack any foe regardless of size. These, as well as the fact that owls are entirely silent in their flight, are well known facts. You should have known."

And this, which is partially a true story, ended the mystery at Rabbit Hill, disappointing in its solution, but nevertheless having provided the deviation from the path of normality that is the spice of small-town existence.

The American's Creed

The American's creed, adopted by the government's committee on publication and in 1918 accepted by the house of representatives "in behalf of the American people," follows: "I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon the principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity, for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies."

Print With Plain Is Style Formula

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THAT new style formula which calls for gay print combined with a monotone weave is taking the world of fashion by storm. The idea has so captivated designers they are working their imagination overtime in order to play up dramatically to this challenge to their genius. The three fetching costumes in the illustration tell an eloquent story in regard to this new and thrilling print-and-plain movement.

Let us consider first the perfectly charming model in the center. It requires genuine artistry to produce anything like this. The manner in which the daisy motif of the print is worked to relieve a straight waistline and to unify blouse and skirt is nothing less than a stroke of genius. The lining of the jacket which, by the way, reflects the very fashionable coolie-coat influence is also of the daisy print. White gloves, a navy hat and pocketbook and navy shoes carry a last word style message.

Did you think it a redingote ensemble—the costume to the left in the picture? It does look the part, we will admit, but in reality it is a voguish one-piece dress of navy sheer with a swish of startling print dashing its way down the entire front of the frock. The collar may be worn open to show revers. Of course you have made mental note of the jaunty little white Breton sailor which this fashionable young woman is wearing. The wee feather brings just the right color note to this nobby headpiece.

Surprise number one is that the costume to the left is not a redingote ensemble and now for surprise number two which is to the effect that the costume to the right in the group is just that—a redingote model. This redingote of unusual styling buttons at one shoulder and down the side under the arm. While it looks as if it might be a one-piece dress it is really an entirely separate item and can be worn as a coat with any frock. A black sheer fabric fashions it and it tops a print crepe gown in yellow and black. Her black Milan straw Breton sailor is definitely chic.

So high does enthusiasm run for this alliance of print and a solid color you will find all sorts of neckwear fancies and accessories to wear with your one-color dresses made of gay Mexican and Roman-stripe or plaid prints. The new bib collars with cuffs to match are animated with cunning pleatings and bright buttons. Plastrons of print silk which cover the entire front of the bodice and are tied about the waist are quite the rage. Try one of these with that navy or black frock which calls for a freshening spring touch. You will be elated to see what one of these neckwear sets of startling print can do to a hitherto somber frock.

Here's another suggestion, why not a boutonniere with gloves to match of multi-colored or checked print to wear with your spring tailored suit? Perhaps an audacious plaid or stripe scarf tied in a huge bow to wear with your navy or brown swagger suit is more to your liking. By the way, had you heard about the increasing popularity of brown prints? This movement is worth watching. Many of these smart brown prints are patterned with lovely fresh spring yellows and vivid orange with a dash of pure white.

STRIPE VELVET

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Summer velvets are proving a great attraction to the style-conscious woman who is looking for the newest and the smartest materials. It can readily be seen from this picture that summer velvet in two-color stripe makes an exceedingly smart swagger sports coat. You can visualize this in navy and white or brown and beige or other combinations, for this most desirable velvet comes in various color alliances. The hat is trimmed, in a most effective manner, with a two-color velvet ribbon.

NUN INFLUENCE IN PLAYTIME STYLES

Playtime costumes for modish moderns recalling the habits of cloistered nuns have stepped upon the fashion stage as a novel note in spring fashions.

Though the black dinner costumes were lightened by gayer touches than a nun ever donned, and gold necklaces and earrings brightened the ensemble, the long-sleeved dinner frocks with demure high necks, the halo hats worn by the mannequins, the serenity of their faces and walk, lent a touch of the habit worn by the French "religieuse."

Madame Lanvin showed a long-sleeved, high-necked dinner gown of scarlet red crepe with an instep length black faille coat and a black halo hat. The mannequin, whose hair was swept serenely back from her face, wore two great gold ball earrings and a belt of golden nail heads. Another striking costume combined a long-sleeved frock of black lace, a long black faille coat and hat.

Mannish Lines Disappear in Latest Spring Suits

Femininity is the essence of that new spring suit.

Though a trimly tailored effect of simplicity is still the rule, the hard mannish line in vogue for several seasons has been tossed on fashion's scrap heap. Wools are often a little softer, silhouettes look less as though they had been sketched by hard black crayon on white paper, accessories such as golden snail or silver seashell fastenings are decidedly feminine.

Metal-Threaded Organdy

Organdy gowns, woven with metal threads or splashed with shimmering seguins, are designed with full sweeping hems which billow about the wearer's feet.

"Oh, but this is such a tiny little spark! and you are going to need my help with that tartar all winter."

Anne deliberated. In her determination that there should be no semblance of a repetition of the episode in Paris she had leaned over backward in her observance of the proprieties. But after all Lassiter was extremely useful to her and she had perhaps been unnecessarily prudish.

"The concert, then," she conceded.

Harriet felt aggrieved that Neal and Anne were leaving her alone on the very night of her arrival. It was impossible to make her understand that in a city where dinner lists were compiled weeks before, they could not ask to bring an extra and unexpected guest with them to a formal dinner.

The next morning, her sister-in-law invaded the room where Anne sat in bed reading her mail and drinking her coffee.

"How do you expect your household to be properly managed if you don't get up in good season and supervise it?" demanded Harriet.

"Well, it is managed," answered Anne patiently. "I don't know of one where there is so little friction or where the servants do so much and do it pleasantly besides. Do be reasonable Harriet; I worked hard for years; but my days of manual labor are over now."

The telephone beside her bed tingled. Anne picked it up.

"Oh, good morning, Blythe— No, I haven't forgotten. Why, that's very kind of you. She is right here, I'll ask her—Harriet, Senator Lassiter says that he and his mother would like very much to have you lunch with them, informally, on Sunday. She says Madame Lassiter is interested in your views."

"I feel it my duty to go," Harriet replied, "though I do not approve of Sunday entertaining on general principles."

Harriet, placated for the moment, hurried off to map out her plan of campaign for the improvement of the nation. Before noon, it had been disclosed that she intended to use Horace and the limousine to facilitate her calls on all the members of both houses of congress, as she expected to influence these legislators in the right direction; she had invited twenty zealots from the National Anti-Tobacco league to tea in order that they might arrange for a series of "parlor meetings" to be held every Monday morning in Anne's drawing room. Anne resolved to abandon all plans of her own for entertaining until a more opportune season.

Without consulting Anne Harriet had suggested to her parents and her brother, Arthur, that they should join her for the holidays; and the house had become so crowded that there was no breathing space in it either figuratively or literally. Anne welcomed the impending appearance of Sol and Sam as an excuse for clearing it out.

Harriet was too firmly entrenched to dislodge, but the others, with veiled comments on Anne's lack of true hospitality, departed on the same day that the boys arrived. But her brothers brought no solace with them. They were so acutely unhappy in the alien atmosphere into which they had suddenly been plunged, that Anne's heart ached for them. She coached them gently but firmly in matters of dress and deportment. They were so docile and tractable that it was pathetic, but she knew they were homesick for the ramshackle old house at West Hamstead, that they hungered for coarse accustomed food, that they would have been more comfortable in overalls than broadcloth, that they were stifled without the air of their native mountains. First Sam and then Sol came down with the "flu," and Anne, caring for them tenderly lest they should be more miserable than ever if abandoned to the mercies of a strange nurse, caught it herself; then it swept through the household like wildfire. Nancy, Neal, the servants, each was felled in turn. Chaos and confusion reigned supreme in the stately house which Neal and Anne had felt so sure was to be the seat of culture and well-ordered living.

At length the invalids recovered, the situation shook itself into shape. The boys began to adjust their difficulties and to enjoy life at the university. Harriet departed for Hinsboro well pleased with her winter's work, and assuring her brother and sister-in-law that she would be on hand the following season to "carry it further." Senator Lassiter saw her off at the station, and then swung back to Georgetown intent on taking Anne for a spin in his roadster with no one to observe just how long they were gone. He found her huddled over the library fire, looking utterly desolate.

"You will be a wreck if you don't watch out," he predicted. "Really, Lady Anne, you look frightfully seedy. The air will do you good."

"I don't need air. I need a little peace and quiet."

He left her reluctantly. It was several weeks before he found her alone again.

Mabel Hildreth had hinted that perhaps she and George and one or two of the children might be coming to Washington that spring; a hint upon which Neal and Anne promptly acted. Neither had forgotten how good Mabel had been to them that first year of their marriage when Anne was so sick. This was, obviously, the time to repay the obligation. Besides, George had become one of the leading farmers of the state; he had tremendous influence with the agricultural vote; he was not only an old friend—he was a constituent with whom to reckon. Then Governor Low, to whom Neal owed his appointment to the senate, stopped off on his way north from a conference of governors which he had been attending in South Carolina, and Mrs. Low joined him. Anne and Neal gave a large official dinner in their honor—the first one, in spite of all their plans, which they had given that winter—followed by a still larger reception.

Anne was perceptibly "overworked," and Neal regarded her with alarm.

"Look here," he said. "Your nerves are all shot to pieces. It's this hellish winter you have had. You shall never let yourself in for another like it again. Family or no family, constituents or no constituents, I won't have you landing in a sanitarium."

"I am not going to land in a sanitarium," sobbed Anne, "I am going to land in the nursery again. Of course I am desperately tired, and that does make me nervous, but one reason I am so silly and uncontrolled is that I am—I am just deathly sick besides—Oh, Neal, I am almost certain that I am going to have another baby!"

But she did not. The pleasant physician who had seen them safely through the "flu," after chatting merrily and casually with her for a few minutes, went downstairs with Neal, closed the library door and spoke frankly.

But After All Lassiter Was Extremely Useful to Her and She Had Perhaps Been Unnecessarily Prudish.

"There is no doubt that she is pregnant. Normally I should expect her to be confined about the end of October, but—I don't think things are quite normal. I will have another man in to look at her, too, if you don't mind."

"If I don't mind!" Neal shouted. "You must do everything for her, everything, do you hear?"

"Don't take it so hard," said Doctor Harrison gently, "of course everything will be done for her."

Anne herself had no misgivings. When she had had a fortnight of complete rest, she was up and about almost as usual except that she was careful—about getting over-tired. She refurnished the guest room as a nursery—"and we will never have another guest room," she laughed, "as long as we live in Washington!" She jested about the "little Benjamin" they were to have so long after they had supposed that their family was complete; she acquiesced uncomplainingly to spending the summer in Washington where Doctor Harrison could watch over her. But, late in August, she was taken acutely and suddenly ill; and when she finally groped her way back from the Valley of the Shadow and stretched out her arms across the bed to touch the little bundle that she expected to find beside her, there was only empty space.

For "little Benjamin" had come too soon; and he had been stillborn.

CHAPTER XII

Anne was very slow in recovering her strength. Doctor Harrison spoke frequently of the advisability of getting to a more bracing climate as soon as she was well enough to travel. But it was late September before she was able to leave her room; and by this time Nancy's school had opened and Sol and Sam had returned to college. So Anne would not hear of going away.

"I'll spend next summer in Hinsboro," she assured her long-suffering physician, "very quietly. The climate is bracing enough there, I assure you."

"The climate may be all right. In fact I have no doubt that it is, but I do not believe you will rest very much. Your husband comes up for election next fall, doesn't he?"

"Y-e-e-s, if he decides to run. I don't believe he has fully yet. But naturally he would like to."

"Quite so—and you would like to have him, I suppose? You wish to do everything you can to help him?"

"Of course."

"Then you had better begin by getting yourself in good physical condition."

MOTHER'S DAY

In accordance with a national custom just twenty years old, Sunday, May 13, will be observed as Mother's Day throughout the United States, in response to a proclamation by the President, who annually designates the second Sunday in May as a day for homage to motherhood.

The day has been observed in some cities as early as 1910, the idea having been originated by Miss Anna Jarvis, of Philadelphia, and the custom spread rapidly. National recognition was given in 1914, when Congress authorized the President to designate the second Sunday in May of each year as Mother's Day, and the first proclamation under this authority was issued by President Wilson the same year.

The object of the day, as is well known, is to recall memories of the mothers who have passed away, and to pay special tributes of affection to the living. The badge for Mother's Day is the white carnation, emblematic of the purity, beauty and fidelity of a mother's love. By some the red carnation is worn in honor of living mothers.

Few of us reflect as often as we should on the debt of love and gratitude we owe to our mothers. By thoughts and acts of sincere affection on Mother's Day, and on other days as well, we honor them and do credit to ourselves.

THRIFT AND SUCCESS

Opportunity comes to everyone, but often the greatest opportunities can not be grasped because it requires a little ready money to enable one to take advantage of them. This point is emphasized by a well known financier, who, in an article on thrift, says:

"Those who became leaders in the business world found the turning point in their careers when they were able to take advantage of a great opportunity because they had the money at hand. In most cases the sum of money involved was small, but coupled with vision, ambition, clean living and self-mastery, these men were able to turn their nest eggs into collosal fortunes."

It is undeniable that the habit of saving comes hard to most people, but having once made a start it is comparatively easy to continue. Nothing inspires the confidence of business men in a young person more readily than the knowledge that he or she is able to save money, even though the amount saved from month to month is not large. Many a young man has been enabled to make a most desirable business connection through a reputation for thrift and having a little ready cash.

MORE BUYING POWER

Governmental spending will pour more than seven and one-half billion dollars into America's pockets this year. The flood will bring immensely increased buying power. Manufacturers and dealers are planning accordingly, it is indicated.

As families began to show better buying power toward the end of 1933, it is interesting to note that they promptly proceeded to equipping their homes with labor and time-saving devices, and other necessities.

Farm income last year was about $1,200,000,000 above 1932, including payment of $152,000,000 to the farmers by Washington, but this is only a fraction compared to what the government will distribute in cash to all classes of population this year. For 1934 the total will be $7,750,000,000, or increased spending power directly traceable to federal spending amounting to $77.50 for each man, woman and child in the United States.

Much of this immense income will go into circulation without delay. America's homes are underequipped and suffering from the burden of, in many instances, out of date appliances. There is a nation-wide urge to improve home conditions. New buying power shows itself in an instantaneous move to end discomforts in the home and inaugurate new economies making living easier and better.

LOOKING FOR GHOSTS

There was a large gathering of people who believe in ghosts at the International Spiritual Congress in Paris, many of the delegates being distinguished in the material world, in addition to their claimed ability to communicate with the spirit world.

Among the proceedings was the decision to erect a monument to the Fox sisters, "founders of modern spiritualism." Continued recognition of the four Fox sisters, who began their famous seances at Hydesville, N. Y., in 1848, appears somewhat strange, in view of the fact that one of the sisters later confessed that their "spirit rappings" were fraudulent, being produced by their ability to dislocate their joints at will with a loud cracking noise. She afterwards appeared on the stage in many cities, exposing and demonstrating these frauds.

With the Fox seances as a beginning, however, spiritualism spread like wildfire and gained many adherents in America and Europe. Many eminent men have been convinced that communication with the spirits of the dead is possible.

The great body of scientific men, however, are skeptical, while generally maintaining an open mind regarding this as they do concerning other ideas and theories, while many consider spiritualism as plain bunk.

A PLUCKY GIRL

In these days, when apparently no limit is set on the ambitions of women looking for a "career," it is not surprising to find them engaged in unusual tasks, and in unusual places. Among those who have left the beaten path seeking adventure and fortune, few have displayed greater pluck and enthusiasm than Miss Kathleen Rice, a native of St. Mary's, Ontario.

Miss Rice, an honor graduate of Toronto University, found school teaching too prosaic and a few years ago set out for northern Manitoba, 400 miles north of Winnipeg, where she homesteaded a quarter-section farm, cleared land and built her own cottage.

Later she took to prospecting for minerals and staked out a number of promising claims, with apparently great potential wealth in gold, copper, nickel, zinc and vanadium. She now lives on an island in Herb Lake, seven miles from the nearest community, where she traps and hunts in the winter and prospects in the summer. No phase of pioneering is foreign to her experience.

If Miss Rice's object was to get away from the monotony of being comfortable, she has certainly accomplished her purpose.

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY

As new building statistics appear, the opportunity for using stimulated construction as a weapon in fighting depression is seen in more accurate perspective.

On the average, between 400,000 and 500,000 new residential units, including apartments, are built annually in the United States. Only 50,000 were built in 1933.

An agressive campaign to unloose private capital for residential building is now starting. If it succeeds, it will force prices up, and put a premium on materials and skilled labor. There's a tip in that for those who have money now—prices are still near the bottom, and the wise property owner can get needed improvements and additions for a fraction of what they will cost in the near future.

Persons who have their faces lifted or otherwise revamped do so at their own risk, according to a ruling by Judge Fenny, of Los Angeles. He threw out of court a suit for damages brought by an actor against a surgeon for ruining the appearance of his nose.

In a certain California shoe parlor, evidently operated by a former resident of Boston, appears this sign: "Pedal integuments brilliantly illuminated and artistically lubricated for the infinitesimal compensation of 15 cents per operation."

News that an airplane smashed a truck the other day was received with satisfaction by owners of small cars.

Archaeologists are much interested in the ancient Hittites. Baseball managers display a similar curiosity.

A man who is clever enough to be boss in his own home is wise enough not to brag about it.

WATCH THE MINES

It is generally believed that the Federal government is considering legislation to spur the production of silver, and stimulate mining in general.

If that is done, it will mean much to the country as a whole—and it will mean general prosperity to a number of states, including our own California.

The mines of Nevada, Utah and other states were once their most important asset. They employed the most labor. They provided the best investment opportunities. They had the largest payrolls. They were the principal taxpayers. The purchasing power they created provided an appreciable percentage of the livelihood of farmers, storekeepers, doctors—all types of workers. And, through the process of expansion which money always follows, it spread across the country, benefitting all industries, and all citizens.

Mining legislation will be watched for eagerly. If we can bring the mines back to normal, we will have taken a real step toward recovery.

ABANDONING RAILROAD MILEAGE

According to C. D. Morris, of the Western Railways' Committee on Public Relations, 3,328 miles of railroad were abandoned in the United States in 1932 and 1933. That is more than the total railway mileage of any one of thirteen of the forty-eight states.

The mileage abandoned in 1933 alone was equal to the total abandonment during 1926, 1927 and 1928. It was greater than the mileage abandoned in any year in history prior to 1932, with a single exception.

A certain amount of the abandonment was due to the elimination of obsolete and unnecessary lines. But a very large part of it resulted not from that, but from the burning need of the railroads to pare operating expenses, to compensate for business lost to other carriers. And the result, Mr. Morris says, is that a large number of communities have been deprived of transportation service, that thousands of railroad men have lost their jobs, and that the tax revenues received by governmental units have been permanently reduced, necessitating higher taxes on other property.

Humane education is compulsory in Kentucky public schools, in some of which animal pets are used to demonstrate the effects of kindness to dumb brutes. Which shows that Mary and her little lamb were merely ahead of their time.

A Wisconsin aviator was arrested for taking a cat up several hundred feet in an airplane and dropping it out to see if it would alight on its feet and live. It didn't.

HOT WATER is used 150 times a day

FOR ECONOMY IT SHOULD BE Stored Hot

YOUR purchase of an Automatic Gas Water Heater is an investment in economy. In daily benefits and in long and dependable service it will pay dividends to the whole family. It is economical in operation as well. An Automatic operates on a minimum of fuel. The wasted fuel alone, in the operation of a tank type heater for example, will go a long way toward paying the cost of automatic hot water because the automatic control and insulated tank conserves fuel.

Right now is the thrifty time to buy your Automatic. Prices have not been raised. Purchase terms and monthly payments are low. Take advantage of this easy way to buy and easy way to save by investing for economy in an Automatic Gas Water Heater.

Stomach Ulcers Treatment

By the California Medical Association.

Stomach ulcers are a common ailment. In the early days of medicine a victim of stomach ulcer usually was considered to have indigestion or "stomach trouble." Today, stomach ulcers, whether in the stomach proper or the stomach outlet, called the duodenum,, are successful treated and serious cases may be cured.

Carefully prescribed diet often clears up the condition. In the more serious cases surgery is the only recourse.

Gas on the stomach a couple of hours after meals frequently is an indication of ulcer. It may not be, however, merely indicating a condition caused perhaps by a nervous condition or some other factor. Passing of blood and vomiting blood are danger signals. A sudden sharp pain in the stomach may indicate a perforation. This means the ulcer has eaten through the stomach walls, permitting the stomach contents to drain into the body. This is a serious condition, but cureable. Prompt medical attention is mandatory.

In treating an ulcer the modern physician is not content to treat alone the ulcer. He believes an ulcer may be caused by an infection in some other part of the body, the teeth particularly. He attempts to find the seat of any such trouble and cure it.

The modern physician goes even further. He considers not only the patient's body as a whole, but also his personal life.

It is not impossible for an individual who has long been unhappy in his work or some other phase of his personal daily affairs, to develop an ulcer. This means the physician must be more than just a physician; he must be a student of human nature, alert to the various influences which surround his patient.

One of the strangest units of the human body is the stomach. It functions as a churn, constantly moving when food is given it, until the contents have passed into the intestines. The physician treating an ulcer gives close attention to the acid content of the stomach, prescribing accordingly if he finds it off balance.

The early physicians possessed a few "curealls," which were given to every patient with "stomach trouble." The modern physician knows there is no general cureall, for the treatment required in one case may not work in another. For this reason the individual who may have an ulcer, or who may merely suspect that he has, is cautioned against self-medication.

Long experience has taught the physician the best method of treatment, of which the carefully devised diet comes first. A large percentage of ulcers are relieved by diet and normal living.

COMMUNITY OBLIGATION

What is community obligation?

This question was brought up by an intelligent young man at our Community Social Whist last evening. Some remark, carelessly uttered, showed the astonishing attitude of a fine group of young girls toward community obligation. The remark started a discussion of much length and heat. It started many trains of thought in the minds of listeners. In fact, a tremendous lot of present day problems were involved in the discussion. To me, the most interesting feature was the divergent view points, as to what was community obligation. Over and over recurred the question as to "What obligation does any group of any kind owe to the community in which it lives?"

This morning, I carefully looked up the word obligation, in my dictionary. I find the first meaning is "Any act which binds one to do, or forbear to do, something to or for another." The second meaning is, "A favor by which one is bound in gratitude." Favor, by the way, is here interpreted to mean kind regard, good will. Accepting these meanings, it does not seem possible for any recognized group to exist in a community and not have some community obligations.

And these obligations will be just what the group makes of them. They may be developed in a happy, joyous spirit or in a bored, ungracious fashion, or even ignored, but the obligations remain.

The average community has many groups, such as occupational, recreational, fraternal and so on; each group taking care of some particular need in the community and each a close unit. In addition to these groups, however, there should be a cross section group that gives something to each and every person in the community.

In Colma this cross section group is called the Colma Community Center. For fourteen years it has housed and contributed to the support of the Public Library. It has sponsored and contributed to the Annual Community Christmas Tree Festival. It has given its hall, rent free, or at a very low rental, to various organizations such as the Red Cross, recreational groups, girls' clubs, boys' clubs, and Boy Scouts.

The members of its board of directors have been actuated solely by a sense of personal responsibility toward the community.

In a community that is alive to the necessity of a cross section group, there generally develops a sense of return obligation. Not a sense of obligation that is an irritation, or a painful bore but a feeling of kind regard, a feeling to do something for the common good of everyone in the place in which one lives; a kindly sense of obligation that is shared by young and old.

M. P. BROWN.

A recent War Department order directs that cavalry sabers be abolished because of the "improbability of their use in the future." Which somehow reminds us of the old question asked recruits: "Why is a saber curved?" To which one bright rookie replied: "So it will go in the scabbard."

The Car—Not the Wife

He had choked her—

She was dead—there could be no doubt about that. He has listened to her dying gasp.

Now she was cold—cold as the hand of death.

Yet, in his anger, he was not convinced. Furiously he kicked her. To his amazement she gasped, sputtered, and began to hum softly.

"Just a little patience is all it takes, John," remarked his wife from the rear seat.

HINTS ON HOW TO BAKE CAKES

Texture and Flavor Almost Equally Important.

By EDITH M. BARBER

CAKE is a large term. Tradition says that the Italians developed sweet breads, which eventually became cake and pastry as we know them today. The Romans are said to have brought into England the wedding cake idea, which they broke over the head of the poor bride. The fragments (of the cake, not the bride) were picked up and distributed among the guests.

Today cake is on the menus of almost every household. Many women still make cakes as regularly on Saturday as they market for the week-end. If cakes are not made at home they are bought in larger quantities on Saturdays than any other day.

Now for the question—how should a cake be judged? The answer is, perhaps, first of all by fine flavor, next and perhaps equally as important comes texture. This matter of flavor and texture is not always separable. A cake of too dry a texture usually has a floury flavor. The other important factors of flavor are divided by the shortening and, of course, by the extract or fruit juice which is added as a last touch. Your final product depends upon the ingredients, the method of mixing and the baking.

First of all the butter or other shortening must be creamed. It is a good idea to take it out of the ice box and keep it at room temperature half an hour before mixing the cake. The sugar should be well blended with the softened fat. A little of the egg yolk added while creaming will quicken the mixing process. The rest of the yolks may be added then, and after this the milk and flour should be added alternately.

If the yolks and whites of eggs are beaten separately the texture of the cake will be light. If beaten together the texture will be closer, but the cake will keep moist longer. If the egg whites are added last they should be folded into the batter.

The flour should be measured and mixed and sifted with the dry ingredients. Pastry or cake flour is often used for cake, as it does not have as much of the gluten which is necessary for yeast breads and which has the quality of toughening with handling. Two more tablespoons of pastry flour to each cup will be needed than when bread flour is used.

Of course all flour should be sifted before measuring. If you have been careless with your measurements and the batter is too thick after the liquid, flour and eggs are added, more liquid must be added to make a batter which will respond to the following test:

Lift some of the batter with the spoon and let it drop back into the bowl. If it breaks half way between the bowl and the spoon it is just the right thickness.

The pans should be well greased with melted fat and then may be dredged lightly with flour. A moderate oven gives best results in baking. An oven thermometer or oven regulation will make certain proper baking, but if you have neither and are in doubt as to judging the temperature err on the side of a slow oven rather than a hot oven as a start. If the cake is not rising quickly enough it will be a signal to increase the heat.

When a cake is done it will, of course, be light brown, and will shrink from the sides of the pan; it will spring back when pressed with the finger, and will not "sing." If a cake is brown and yet still "sings" turn out the fire, but leave the cake in the oven a few minutes more.

Turn the pan upside down on a cake cooler or wire rack and allow it to come out of the pan without any assistance.

Standard Butter Cake.

2 cups cake or pastry flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
¾ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla.

Mix and sift flour with baking powder and salt. Cream butter thoroughly, and sugar slowly and cream until fluffy. Beat eggs well and add. Beat one minute. Add flour alternately with milk. Add vanilla. Fill two greased nine-inch layer pans or two sets of muffin tins. Bake in a moderate oven (375 dreeges F.) twenty-five to thirty minutes.

Creole Cake.

½ cup butter
2 cups brown sugar
3 eggs
⅓ cup cocoa
½ cup hot strong coffee infusion
1 teaspoon soda
2 cups flour
½ cup sour cream or milk.

Cream butter and gradually beat in sugar. Then add egg yolks beaten until thick. Add coffee infusion gradually to cocoa and let stand until cool. Add to first mixture, then add cream and flour sifted with soda. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in layer cake tins in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about twenty minutes. Put layers together with boiled icing, cover top with icing and when set spread with a thin layer of chocolate, melted. One cup of chopped nuts and one cup of raisins may be added to make a chocolate fruit cake.

All Professors Lie, Pedagogue Admits

London.—Undergraduates at the University of Western Ontario were puzzled over a charge by Prof. N. C. Hart, head of the department of botany, that students are suckers and professors liars.

Hart told his class that every professor told from 8 to 18 "downright lies" per lecture.

"The trouble with most students," he said, "is that they take in everything told them, not excluding lectures. For instance, every professor tells from 8 to 18 downright lies per lecture, and you take them all in like suckers."

How It Started

By Jean Newton

"A Labor of Love"

A LABOR of love is work undertaken without thought of reward. The usual implication is that it is done for the pleasure of it. Frequently, however, the literal meaning of the words is intended, that is doing something for love of some one as "What a mother does for a child is a labor of love."

The expression originated in the New Testament. In the First Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the Thesalonians we find in Chapter one:

"2. We give thanks to God always for you all, making mention of you in our prayers.

"3. Remembering without ceasing your work of faith, and labor of love, and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ, in the sight of God and our Father."

Spring Source Sought; Moistens Texas Valley

Balmorhea, Texas.—For three year government experts have been testing the mountains and adjacent territory around Balmorhea in an effort to locate the source of a mysterious spring that flows 32,000,000 gallons of water a day and creates a fertile valley of 15,000 acres here.

The government experts, if they can find the source, hope to increase the flow.

Water from the spring runs into a 640-acre lake at Balmorhea after passing through probably the finest swimming pool in the Southwest.

During the winter months the spring, together with surface drainage from the mountains, fills the huge lake to a depth of 40 feet. In the summer the water is released for farm lands. Cotton and alfalfa are the principal crops.

Another mystery attraction at Balmorhea is Phantom lake, formed by a flow of water from the face of a mountain bluff. The water gushes out on private ranch property.

There is a legend at Balmorhea that three brothers discovered this flow of water from the cliff and one of them determined to investigate.

Lights of New York

By L. L. STEVENSON

The death of Porter J. White, a trouper remembered by old-timers all over the country, caused a revival of the legend concerning the origin of "The Face on the Barroom Floor." Mr. White was the first to recite that poem which has been heard possibly as often as "Casey at the Bat" and which occasionally is still sold on the streets of New York. It was away back in August, 1887, when Hugh Antoine D'Arcy, character actor and manager, came into Mr. White's room and awakened him. Clutching several pieces of paper, he said he had just had an experience that had moved him greatly. With some friends, he had wandered into Joe Smith's saloon at Fourteenth street and Fourth avenue and while sitting and talking—Mr. D'Arcy was a teetotaler—a tramp came in and begged for a drink. His thirst assuaged, he drew on the floor, with a piece of chalk, a woman's face. As he was finishing his work, the bouncer came along and gave him the bum's rush.

• • •

Mr. D'Arcy followed the vagabond outside and offered him a little money. Moved by gratitude, the outcast told his story. A man of culture, he had been driven to drink by the loss of his sweetheart and the treachery of a friend. Instead of returning to the saloon, Mr. D'Arcy went to his hotel and scribbled the verses that were to endure through the years. Mr. White was the first one to read them and to see in them dramatic value.

• • •

The original title was "The Face on the Floor." Many years ago, some self-appointed editor, changed it to "The Face on the Barroom Floor." Under such a name, Mr. D'Arcy's masterpiece was used extensively as temperance propaganda. Despite the fact that he didn't drink, that irked Mr. D'Arcy no little. He had written his poem as a plea for kindness to those to whom fate had not been kind.

• • •

Looking back over the years, I recall the Porter J. White company, in, I think, "The Fool's Revenge" at Dickson's Grand Opera house. It was a performance that kept me pressed against the peanut gallery rail, and when the last curtain came, I experienced a deep sense of loss. In comparison with those of the days of adolescence, dramatic offerings of today seem to lack something.

Up at Rowayton, Conn., there is an organization that interests me. It has no members, no dues and no officers, except an acting secretary, Miss Elizabeth Harrold. She was not elected, but somebody has to send out notices of meetings—a matter of great importance, since, there being no members, the attendance is strictly by invitation. That prevents friction. If some one starts an argument or tries to form a clique, she gets no more invitations. The society, as yet, hasn't even a name, those who receive invitations being unable to decide whether to make it the Horticultural Society of Southern New England or the Horticultural Society of New England.

• • •

At the meetings, there is a formal address by a speaker with a reputation in the field of horticulture. The speaker is not paid, merely being allowed her expenses. Following her discourse, there is informal discussion among those present. Those invited look on it as a perfect organization. There is just one drawback. The original invitation list consisted of 20. Recently, a meeting was held at Darien and so much interest was stirred up that it looks as if from now on, Miss Harrold will have to send out at least 500 invitations for each meeting.

BRIDES ASK—

DEAR Mrs. Post: I want to send one wedding invitation to a mother and father and their two unmarried daughters living with them. Since "and family" is not allowed by best form, please tell me just how their names are written on one envelope?

Answer: Mr. and Mrs. John Jones and on the line below, the Misses Jones.

My dear Mrs. Post: The soloist and organist who are to sing and play at my wedding are friends of my young uncle. They are not asking a fee but are doing it for me because he asked them to. I am going to invite them both to my reception, which is to be a large one. Outside of this, must I buy them each a gift?

Answer: I don't think I would say "must," but to give each a remembrance would be an appreciative thing to do, and to give them nothing would put you too much in their debt.

• • •

Dear Mrs. Post: My nephew was married several months ago, and since his return from his wedding trip has received a bill for the hire of the five cars used to take the bridal party and others to the church and then to the hotel for dinner and the reception. He ignored the bill because we were all under the impression that this item was part of the bride's family expenses. Now we learn that her family are making a lot of disagreeable comment because of his neglect in paying the bill. You, as arbiter, can help us.

Answer: There are as many local customs as there are localities, but this is one I have never heard of. The only car that he should be expected to pay for is the one that took the best man and himself to the church, and possibly the one in which he and his wife drove to the station after the wedding.

• • •

My dear Mrs. Post: Please list all the expenses of my wedding that should be taken care of by my parents. I am having a simple church wedding, with a reception at my parents' club afterwards.

Answer: All cost of invitations and announcements, your trousseau, wedding dress, decoration of church and house, all music, wedding breakfast and collation, bridesmaids bouquets, and all transportation of immediate family and bridal party. In many communities the bridegroom gives the bride her bouquet. Therefore, follow local custom.

THE ALL-IN-ONE WEDDING INVITATION

DEAR Mrs. Post: The time has come for mother to order the invitations to my wedding. A friend told us you wrote sometime last winter that the wedding invitation which folds in half and whose edges seal to form an envelope on which the address is written is in best possible taste and used by smartest people. The stationer has shown us a sample of this style of invitation on this bond paper, as well as the heavier kid paper that fits in two envelopes. The thin all-in-one piece invitation is considerably less expensive, but before choosing it we would like to be sure of your opinion, please.

Answer: I can't remember exactly what I answered, but I doubt having gone so far as to say that the all-in-one sheet invitation was in "best possible" taste. I think I said it would be permissible since it is the type of invitation much used in England and one that has been chosen also by a number of the smart in New York. Lately, however, several invitations and announcements have been sent me by my readers, which have made me rather sorry that I endorsed this type of invitation, because it can lend itself to a very poor quality of paper and to imitation engraving. About half of the examples sent me looked rather shoddy by the time they had gone through the mail.

In other words, I really prefer the conventional wedding invitation engraved (not printed) on a kid finish paper suggestive of an orange blossom petal in color and texture, which fits into an inner envelope without mucilage on the flap, and this into an outer one with a mucilage flap. The reason for the two envelopes is that when the outer one is thrown away, the under one is entirely fresh and therefore nicer to keep with its enclosures until the latter are used. In the single form, no cards can be enclosed, and a postmarked, and sometimes crumpled invitation must be presented at the church.

It is true that for those who must economize, the sheet and envelope in one is less expensive to have made, and to stamp, since it can be sent as unsealed postage. But if saving of expense is not a pressing necessity, the conventional invitation with its card enclosures is certainly in best possible taste.

JEFFERSON UNION HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

Mr. Truman Bentley was re-elected president of the Jefferson Union High School District Board of Trustees at their last meeting. Mrs. Stella Jensen, clerk of the board, was also re-elected to that position. Both elections were by unanimous vote.

The Jefferson Union High School P.-T. A. will give a whist Friday evening in the senior room of the high school building. Students and parents are invited to attend.

Spring practice will start Monday and continue for the next two weeks. Many fellows are aspiring for football honors and are going to take their preliminary training. Their course will consist of simple gymnastics and getting their bodies in shape.

Improvement on the baseball field began last Monday under the direction of the San Mateo County Relief Administration. The diamond is to be lowered two and a half feet and the work will take nearly sixty-five days. Loam from the infield is being removed and carried to the outfield. Many of the boys from the Physical Education classes have volunteered to help as much as they can. In this way the project will be speeded as much as possible. The bleachers will remain as they are, thus insuring a better view of the future ball games.

A number of students and alumni will attend a performance of "Ah, Wilderness," Eugent O'Neill's comedy success. Will Rogers, America's foremost comedian, wit and philosopher, will have the major part. Even though this is Mr. Roger's first stage play, as he has already gained much fame. Other members of the cast are: Anne Shoemaker, of Broadway stage fame; Charlotte Henry, Marhta Mayo, William Jenney, Jay Ward and John H. Dilson.

Among those who will have the pleasure of seeing the play will be Lyla Crane, Anita Mooney, Edwin Davies, Walter Fati, Richard Spencer, Wesley Fulton, Robert Fleming, Henry Biggio, Inez Merlo, Marie Denevi, Norma Conti, Dolores Bentley, Hariet Anderson, Elizabeth Camazind, Dorothy Fuchs, Irene Twesten, Ruth Smith, and Catherine and Sue McKeown.

A close election is expected for the various student body offices for next semester, according to the petitions that have been distributed among the students. Wesley Fulton, Jack Marty, Steve Parodi are in the race for the presidency. Marvin Schlessinger, Peggy Vincent and Muriel Wittmer have thrown their hats into the vice-presidency ring. Marvin is the present boys' athletic manager. Peggy is the secretary of the junior class, and Muriel is president of the local chapter of the C. S. F. Competition is also offered for the offices of secretary and treasurer. Laura Anderson, Inez Merlo and Doris Robertson are running for secretary, and Lyla Crane and Lucille Dietrich are competing for the office of treasurer. Dan O'Brien has again consented to run for sergeant-at-arms. Edwin Davies has been nominated for the office of student judge.

Acording to the constitution of the student body of Jefferson Union High School, no one may run for student body offices who has received a grade lower than a C. Other qualifications are: the president and judge must be seniors while in office; other officers may be juniors or seniors; the cheer leader may be a lower classman. All petitions may be handed in to the executive board.

The office made the following announcement on Tuesday: "Ninth period has been held for the purpose of assisting students to make up deficiencies. It will be discontinued at the end of next week. Those who have deficiencies to make up should use the next two weeks to the best advantage. The remainder of the term will be required for preparation for examinations in this term's work."

Evidently many students have not been using this extra period advantageously. It should be remembered that the ninth period is not a punishment—it seeks to aid all those who are in danger of not passing. There are a few seniors who may not graduate, and they should realize whose fault it is. The teachers have done their best, and it is not right that they should receive any blame. If you will use all of next week to make up your F's and incompletes, you can feel confident that you will not be one of those who will have to repeat courses another year.

Annual Mountain Play To Be Presented May 20

Joseph Pissott, director of the choral section of the Tamalpais Conservation Club, is in charge of the chorus to sing ballads of the fifties, recurring throughout "The Girl of the Golden West," annual Mountain Play, which will take place on Tamalpais, Sunday, May 20.

The scene of "The Girl of the Golden West" is laid in a typical mining camp of the Gold Rush. Women are but few in the remote spot and only two women will have parts in the Tamalpais production. These are Jean Scott as the Girl, and Rose Wood as Wowkie, an Indian squaw. Others in the cast are Howard Banks, John Grover, Henri Poppic, Herschel Silverstone, Lyman Henry, Louis Sturm, Sidney Sargent, Adolph Benjamin, John Rust, A. J. Woodward, Wilmot Wood, Richard Siprelle, Angelo Leonardi, and Frank Moroe.

The Tamalpais spectacle will, this season, complete a record of twenty-one successful productions in the natural amphitheatre, on the south slope of the mountain.

Most U. of C. Graduates To Remain in California

If you are a graduate of the University of California, or if you ever attended the state university, the chances are nine to one that you will have your permanent home in this state for the rest of your life.

On the other hand, if you are included in the 10 per cent who leave the state, there is an excellent possibility that you will wind up in Lapland, Thibet, the Cameroons, Argentina, the Malay States, Russia or the Aleutian Islands.

These facts have been uncovered by the California Alumni Association in collecting information for a geographical directory of alumni to be published in September.

Information for the directory which is being collected reveals that 92.08 per cent of the alumni of the University remain in California all their lives. Of the 7.92 per cent who wander afield, 6.42 per cent scatter themselves around forty-seven states, and the 1.50 per cent abroad turn up in many of the remote and sparsely settled areas of the world.

COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

NOTE: This is a weekly report from the San Mateo Department of Public Health and Welfare, giving facts of importanec to health protection, and a list of contagious diseases reported to the County Health Officer in the previous week, as required by law.

A Unified Program

The charter of San Mateo county, which has now been in effect approximately ten months, has a novel plan for the unification of all the activities pertaining to public health and welfare under one head.

The major activities which are included under this unified program are, in the order of their financial magnitude, the Community Hospital, the Social Service Division, the Relief Home and the Public Health division.

The Community Hospital furnishes medical and surgical service for all types of acute and chronic diseases in patients who are legal residents of the county and financially unable to pay for similar service in a private hospital. The hospital has an outpatient clinic, to which patients are admitted on a similar basis if they require medical care and do not need to be confined to the hospital. It is the duty of the Social Service division to investigate the eligibility of all applicants for admission to the outpatient clinics, the relief home and those who require food and shelter outside of institutions.

The three major divisions of public health are sanitation, communicable disease control and public health laboratory work. The public health division includes supervision of sewage and garbage, the cleanliness of food establishments, the healthfulness of school buildings, etc. Communicable disease control covers such contagious diseases as smallpox, typhoid fever, diphtheria and others too numerous to mention. The laboratory work provides a positive diagnosis for many of the communicable diseases, and helps to prove when they have been brought under control.

Other divisions of public health work which involve all three of the activities mentioned above are: milk and dairy inspection, meat and slaughter house inspection and the safeguarding of water supplies.

Advantages of Consolidation

There are many advantages of such a combination of functions as the charter gives the Department of Public Health and Welfare of San Mateo County.

1. All of these functions concern the protection of the health of the community as a whole. This is obvious in respect to some of them, but even many of the activities of a general hospital are as much concerned with the protection of the community against communicable diseases as with the relief of individual sufferers.

2. The laboratory in our setup serves equally the needs of the hospital, the milk inspection service, water analysis, and communicable disease control.

3. The unified control of all social service investigations for the county eliminates duplication and overlapping; the same individuals are handled by the welfare workers at different times for diverse needs. Records are centrally filed and easily acessible to workers in the division.

4. The responsible heads of divisions meet regularly and discuss problems of mutual interest and their advice is ultiized by the director in co-ordinating all divisions.

5. Elimination of duplicaton and overlapping as suggested above will mean not only efficiency, but a more humane handling of charity applicants and a saving to the community as a whole.

6. The hospital serves all parts of the county, regardless of city limits. The Public Health Department is also equipped to provide the entire community with all types of health service by contract with municipalities and school districts.

250-MILE CLASSIC WON BY MEYER

Lou Meyer, of Walnut Park, Cal., three-times national champion, Sunday won the 250-mile road race for stock cars at Oakland Speedway over a field of twenty drivers. Sam Palmer was second, Danny De Paolo third, Ted Horn fourth and Mel Kennaly fifth. The first six cars were Fords. There were no accidents. Meyer averaged the fast time of 77.68 miles per hour in his stock V-8 Ford. The fastest lap was made by Palmer, in a Ford, who was clocked at 80.35 miles per hour. A crowd of 17,000 witnessed the thrilling race. Meyer's time for the 250 miles was 3 hours 13 minutes 3 4-5 seconds. Meyer won the race by a quarter of a lap, being just ahead of De Paolo and Palmer.

Meyer drove a steady race and did not challenge until near the end. He took the lead on the 222nd lap, passing Palmer who lost three quarters of a lap in obtaining gasoline. Meyer had obtained gas on the 200th lap and had enough to finish.

Al Gordon and Palmer thrilled the spectators as they fought for the early lead, but Gordon lost out on the 113th lap when he stopped to change tires, dropping 12 laps. His speed up to this time was 78.04 miles per hour.

A. J. Bertini, of the National Auto Co., and local Ford dealer, is quite proud of the decisive victory.

JUNIOR PENTATHLON HEALTH SUGGESTIONS

By DR. FRANK H. BOWLES

A "reg'lar feller" is always the regular fellow.

In any field of endeavor, regularity is the keynote of success; and success in the Junior Pentathlon depends primarily on regularity.

It is essential to be regular in your habits of sleeping, eating, training, studying and playing.

Establish a definite schedule for yourself and adhere to it. You will develop not only a healthy body, but a health mind—the chief aids to happiness and success.

The rules for health are simple: Five "Do's" and five "Don'ts."

1. Sleep for eight or ten hours each night in an airy room.
2. Eat plenty of all kinds of plain food while in training.
3. Drink plenty of water during the day.
4. Brush your teeth thoroughly at least twice a day.
5. Bathe frequently in moderately warm or cold water—tub or shower.

1. Don't wash your food down with milk or water. Chew it well.
2. Don't exercise too much. Follow your coach's instructions.
3. Don't exercise too soon after eating. Wait an hour or two.
4. Don't eat when you are too tired. Rest a few minutes.
5. Don't follow any diet fad. You need regular food.

By athletic training and sensible living, you may add 25 per cent to your weight and strength for all time. But above all, be regular in our habits.

VACATION SAFETY TAUGHT CHILDREN

Rules for avoiding traffic dangers as well as other hazards that children may meet during the approaching summer school vacation will be emphasized during May for pupils in more than 14,000 classrooms of northern and central California. A Code of vacation safety is presented in the regular monthly lesson material and poster distributed by the Public Safety Department of the California State Automobile Association for the use of teachers. The poster carries the slogan, "In the city or in the country, 'play safe' this vacation." The lesson data offers the following rules:

WHILE AT HOME: Play on public playgrounds, sidewalks, or in your own yards.

Cross streets at intersections only, not in the middle of the block or against traffic signals.

Use roller skates in safe places, taking them off before crossing busy streets.

Stay close to the right side of the road or street when riding a bicycle, and give proper arm signals.

WHILE ON TRIPS: Drive and ride carefully, never taking unnecessary chances of injuring yourselves or others.

Walk facing traffic on highways. Do not ask strangers for rides.

WHILE IN THE MOUNTAINS: Use the main trails to avoid getting lost.

Never leave campfires until they have been buried or put out with water.

Give first aid immediately to cuts and scratches.

Carefuly avoid touching unknown plants, because they might be poisonous.

WHILE AT BEACHES: Swim only in safe places; avoid the danger of getting too far from shore.

Find out the depth of the water in strange locations before diving.

Study life-saving methods and learn how artificial respiration is applied.

Remain seated when riding in canoes or other small boats.

Don't take a stranger in your car; it might be Dillinger.

MINING NOTES

Eah boat leaving Seattle for Alaska is carrying a large quota of passengers headed for the Seward Peninsula to resume mining operations after spending the winter outside.

Estimates of what the new Federal gold tax will cost the five largest producing gold mines of British Columbia this year are admittedly difficult, but it is believed by careful observers that it may run to as much as $750,000.

United Copper-Gold Mines, Ltd., plans extensive development of thirty-two mineral claims owned by the company in the heart of the Cariboo district. Surface trenching and the driving of a prospect tunnel will be undertaken, after which diamond-drilling to prove the ore at depth will take place.

Daily average gross crude oil production in the United States increased 12,800 barrels last week, totaling 2,337,650 barrels.

Commencing what promises to be a record year of production, British Columbia mines in January produced 20,716 ounces of gold, valued at $725,000 at world market prices, and about $428,000 at the statutory value of gold.

Representatives of the Channel Mines, Ltd., recently exhibited in Helena, Montana, assay certificates of ore running $17,986.50 to the ton.

The last car of Kootenay Belle ore, shipped from Salmo, B. C., and containing 46 tons, ran 3.14 ounces gold, and 1.5 ounces silver per ton, according to preliminary assay, indicating a gross value of about $5,000 for the car.

News from Euphrates mine, near Nelson, B. C., says that from March 28 to April 17, an advance of 140 feet was made in Ell Tee tunnel, some delay having been caused by the necessity of the installation of ventilating pipe.

El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, N. D. G. W., entertained the mothers of its members on Wednesday evening May 2. A short program was presented by some dancing kiddies from a local dancing school, after which each mother was introduced by Miss Elsie Behringer and presented with a gift from the Parlor. There are several instances where mother and two or three daughters all belong to the Parlor. Delicious refreshments consisting of baked ham, salads and cakes all prepared by the daughters were served in the banquet room. The committee in charge consisted of Hattie Kelly, Louise Eliasen, Elsie Behringer, Leona Walker, Pauline Gregoire, Anita Barner, Dolly Galway, Christine Hume and Florence Hopman. The mothers and daughters all enjoyed the evening and highly commended the committee in charge.

Farm Income Nearly Doubled For Quarter

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics estimates total cash farm income for the first quarter of 1934 at $1,312,000,000, of which $97,000,000 came from benefit payments, as compared with $873,000,000 for the first quarter of 1933.

The March, 1934, cash income of farmers included $408,000,000 from sale of farm products, and $9,000,000 from rental and benefit payments by the Farm Administration for acreage reduction, compared with $275,000,000 in March, 1933. April is the year's lowest point of income, yet the bureau estimates April, 1934, income at from $375,000,000 to $425,000,000.

Safety First

Nervous Passenger: "Don't drive so quickly around the corners. It makes me frightened."

New Driver: "You don't want to get scared. Do as I do—shut your eyes when we come to the corners."

That Georgia man who lost his speech while making an airplane flight probably wishes he had let his wife go up first.
